Greeks Forging Trap for Rebels

ATHENS, July 15 (AP)—Two major engagements were imminent in embattled northern Greece today as government forces, reported to be closing the jaws of a pincers on Leftist guerrillas, took up positions along valley roads leading to Ioannia (Janina), capital and largest city of Epirus. A large guerrilla force moving down the Voisi River valley toward Ioannina from Konista was reported caught in the pincers of a Greek army unit reinforced at Konista and replacements moving north from Ioannina. The attacking guerrillas began moving southward after their attack on Konista two days ago.

(Landon said Britain was investigating reports that an International Brigade was invading Greece and stated that if the existence of such a brigade was proved, a joint British-American protest might be lodged with the United Nations.)

The other guerrilla column near Kalpaki, which is south of Konitsa, clashed last night with government troops. It was reported that

INVADERS CUTT OFF—Communist-inspired invaders of northern Greece were under heavy fire north of Ioannina today . . . and Greek forces were said to have cut off their retreat to the Albanian border by surrounding (small arrows) tactics.

BULLETIN

ATHENS, July 15 (AP)—The Royalist newspaper Estia said a squadron of British warships under Adm. Sir Algernon Willis, commander of the Mediterranean fleet, was scheduled to arrive in Piraeus, Athens' port, on Saturday. The newspaper said American naval contingents ,including an aircraft carrier, might arrive sooner than expected because of developments.

50 guerrillas were taken prisoner in the engagement. This force, which the government charked came from Albania, apparently aimed at moving down the Kalamas Valley, also leading into Ioannina. These Leftists were reported holding strategic heights. A new clash apparently was expected.

There was a possibility of still another invasion. Unconfirmed reports said Florina and Kastoria, both opposite the Yugeslav frontier, were being strengthened.

The Communist-directed newspaper Eleftheria Ellada said a guerrilla battle line stretching southward from Florina was becoming more sharply defined. The newspaper denied the presence of an International Brigade in the north, saying this charge was a ruse to bring American troops to Greece.

Greece Openly Accuses Reds of Invasion Plot

NEW YORK, July 15 (INS)—Greek Deputy Premier and Foreign Minister Tsaldaris, charged today that Russia's satellite states, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania, are arming and training the Communist bands now invading northern Greece.

In an exclusive interview with the New York Journal-American, Tsaldaris said:

"This invasion of Greece by these bandits is a clear violation of international law and an act of aggression.

"For months I have known that the Communists were training these guerrillas and preparing for this move. Now, that it is underway, the world is faced with a grave threat to peace.

"The question of invasion of Greece by a group of international bandits must be taken up immediately by the Security Council. It is a threat to the peace of Europe."

Tsaldaris characterized the invasion as a "part of the entire Russian plan" to set up a Slav bloc reaching to the Mediterranean, thus putting Arabian oil within military boundaries of Soviet control.

Truman Due to Send Veto Message on Tax Bill Friday

By WILLIAM THEIS

WASHINGTON, July 15 (INS)—The White House announced today that President Truman expects to veto the tax reduction bill Friday. The President will send a message to Congrass accompanying his veto.

At the same time, Sen. eGorge (D.) of Georgia conceded President Truman's veto of the GOP tax-cut bill would be sustained, but branded it "bad politics for the Democratic party."

George voted for the Jan. 1, 1948, tax reduction bill when it passed the Senate by a vote of 60 to 32 Monday—two votes short of the margin needed to override Mr. Truman.

The ranking Democratic fiscal expert declared:

"In my opinion the vote on the veto will be just about the same. I don't imagine there will be any changes, unless some who voted for the bill decide to go along with the President."

The bill was prevented from going to the White House last night, but was expected to be signed by the speaker and president pro tempore today and be transmitted immediately.

With an indicated margin of 26 votes, the House is expected to override and send the veto to the Senate for a vote Saturday or Monday.

Other Democrats opposed to the bill pointed to the passage vote as certain evidence that Mr. Truman's hand will be upheld in the Senate when the veto comes up later this week.

Minority leader Barkley (D.) of Kentucky pointed out that Sen. Thomas (D.) of Utah, who opposes the bill, will be on hand for the veto showdown to give the President another vote.

"We have enough now," he said.

Republican leaders Taft, of Ohio and Millikin, of Colorado, refused to give up hope of overriding but displayed an air of resignation about the ultimate outcome.

Paris Parley Bows to Delay Of U. S. Funds

PARIS, July 15 (AP)—A well-informed source at the 16-nation economic conference said today the organization of European cooperation for recovery would proceed despite indications that United States money for the Marshall plan would not be available before late winter.

The informant—commending on Sec. of State Marshall's address last night in Salt Lake City, in which he said the program would not be submitted to Congress before January—said the Marshall timetable doubtless was fixed after careful consideration of the best means of preparing the legislation.

(What the cost will be never has been stated definitely. Benjamin Cohen, State Department councilor, said a month ago Europe would need $24,000,000,000 during the next four years and would require $15,000,000,000 alone to prevent starvation.)

Official French circles said they saw no reason for altering the goal of Sept. 1 for completion of a survey of resources and dollar needs among the 16 nations participating in the Paris conference.

The nations which make up the conference executive committee and four subcommittees on food and agriculture, iron and steel, transport and coal and power were selected yesterday.

This was expected to be the last plenary session until committee reports on assets and dollar needs are completed. A British spokesman said Foreign Secretary Bevin probably would return to London tomorrow.

BRITON QUITS VIENNA TALK

VIENNA, July 15 (INS)—Sir George Rendel of Britain left Vienna for London after Austrian peace treaty talks bogged down in what allied circles described as Russian obstinacy.

Atom Probers Seek Source Of Theft News

By FRANK B. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, July 15 (INS)—The joint congressional atomic committee today sought the source of newspaper reports contradicting committee statements that no secret documents have been stolen from the Oak Ridge plant.

While pledging vigorous inquiry, Chairman Hickenlooper contradicted a mysterious announcement by the atomic committee office saying that three newspapermen would be summoned for an open hearing today, along with the former Manhattan district commandant, Maj. Gen. Leslie Groves, and Rep. Parnell Thomas (R.) of New Jersey, chairman of the House un-American activities committee.

Newspapermen named were Edward Nellor of the New York Sun, who said important documents were stolen from Oak Ridge, Frank Waldrop, editorial columnist, and James Walter, Washington Times-Herald reporter.

During last night's lengthy atomic committee session, several staff members entered and left the meeting room carrying photographic copies of newspaper pages.

Would End All Federal Taxation on Autos

WASHINGTON, July 15 (AP)—An end to all special federal taxation on autos was sought today in a petition filed wjth Congress by more than 400 national and state organizations of highway users.

The petition was presented to the House ways and means and Senate finance committees.

Divorces Veteran To Wed Him Again

SEYMOUR, Ct., July 15 (AP)—The story of a veteran whose wife divorced him so she could marry him came to light here today.

The divorce was obtained in Belfast, Ire., last week by Mrs. Agnes Gibbons Torowich, 25, who plans to come here next month to remarry her 32-year-old ex-husband, John Torowich, an American Brass Co. employe.

The divorce had to be obtained, Torowich explained, because he married Miss Gibbons in 1944 without Army permission while stationed in Northern Ireland. After returning to the United States he discovered his wife and their daughter, now 2 years old, could not come here with regular war bride shipments until he arranged a remarriage.

Sword Battler Sick, Waits Court Action

Arraignment of Stanley Blinstrub, 57, Western ave., Brighton, gas station owner, who went berserk with a Japanese sword in his home Sunday, was postponed indefinitely today when City Hospital doctors revealed he needed further treatment for cuts and gas inhalation.

Disarmed and overpowered by a scort of police who resorted to tear gas and coaxed him to surrender, Blinstrub was booked for assault and battery with a dangerous weapon. Police Sgt. Joseph Maguire, one of his captors, was confined at his home with a rib fracture.

Hitchhike Shooting Victim Tells Of Sandpit Crime

An Elmira, N. Y., salesman, shot in the back and left to die in a sandpit, today told dramatically how he trapped his attacker—even while the latter was being arraigned here in Dedham court on a fugitive from justice warrant.

Wade E. Philpott, 26, of Elmira, told his story from a hospital cot at Sayre, Pa., while Robert Standish Harrington, 25, formerly of Natick, waived extradition on the fugitive charge and was surrendered to New York State authorities. He started back to Elmira to face charges of armed robbery and assault with intent to murder.

Harrington, who told Judge Herbert A. Baker his present home was in Villa Ridge, Mo., was arrested when Wellesley police spotted him speeding along the Worcester turnpike in the automobile of his victim. The youth, whoh has spent most of his life in jails, gave up without a struggle and said he was ready "to face the music."

"I believed the man who shot me was from Wellesley, Mass.," Philpott said today on regaining consciousness.

"At least he said he came from Wellesley and boasted to me about what good dates the girls at Wellesley College made.

"I picked up the man in Ohio and drove him 200 miles to Elmira. I even bought him two meals during the trip.

"I had to drop him in Elmira but he pulled a gun on me and ordered me to drive out on a lonely road, outside the city.

"The stranger took my pocketbook containing $60 and marched me into a sand pit. He slugged me first and when I fell face down in the sand he fired a bullet into my back.

"I could hear him muttering about 'finishing up the job,' so I lay still as if dead. That's all that saved me, for the man then jumped in my machine and beat it.

"I was sure I was going to die. I didn't want the man to go scot free. So I wrote out a message with my finger in the sand. Then I passed out."

The message police found later was, "The man that shot me comes from Wellesley, Mass."

"Later I came to," Philpott continued. "I crawled 700 yards to the road, where some passersby found me and rushed me to the hospital. That's about the whole story."

Sgts. James Chisholm and William McEurney, on the lookout for the New York registered machine, caught up with Harrington just outside the Wellesley city limits.

In the stolen machine police found two guns and a box of cartridges. Harrington then began to talk. He had two boys in the machine, young hitch-hikers who had asked a ride to Worcester. Police let them go.

"I didn't want to see those two kids get hurt," police quoted Harrington as saying. "If I hadn't had them with me I'd have given you a real race for your money and a battle, too."

Harrington, according to Sgt. Chisholm, said he arrived in Boston Sunday and had been cruising about this area since. He was en route to visit a girl in Marlboro when police caught up with him.

Police said he had about $200 in his pockets, as well as the pocketbook of Philpott.

He was quoted as saying he was planning to do some "business" at a turnpike diner and a Wellesley drug store, where the owner was "an old man and a soft touch."

Harrington said he had been a state ward and first got into real trouble when he was 14. He served time at Shirley School until he was 17 and then left Massachusetts.

He admitted serving time in jails in Missouri, Texas and Florida.

Maine Girl, Man in Car Sought Here

Boston and State Police were requested today by Police Chief Fred Gould of Fairfield, Me., to be on the lookout for 14-year-old Margaret Nutt, missing from her home there since early Monday afternoon, when she was last seen being picked up by the driver of an out-of-state car.

Chief Gould's message, broadcast throughout several eastern states through the Maine State Police barracks at Augusta, described the girl as mature for her age, 5 feet tall, 116 pounds, with brown hair and eyes. She was wearing a white blouse, flounced skirt and brown and white sport shoes.

Margaret's mother, Mrs. Walter Nutt, told police that the girl left their Main st. home after lunch, saying she was going out to get an ice cream cone. Mrs. Nutt said she gave Margaret a nickel to buy the cone.

When the girl had failed to return home by 6 p. m., the mother sent her son, Benjamin, 17, in search of her. Ben told his mother that just before he got home at 4 p. m. he had seen Margaret standing at the intersection of Lawrence ave. and Main st., not far from home. She was alone at the time.

When further search failed to reveal any trace of the girl, the Fairfield police were notified

Boy Drowns As Boat Tips

AMESBURY, July 15—Robert Leach, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester P. Leach of Maplewood ave., was drowned in Lake Gardner when a boat capsized in which he was rowing with two companions, Dominic Roy and Clarence Shippee.

Doris Lucier, 17, of Friend st., dived into the lake in a futile attempt to rescue the boy. Police recovered the body.

MOTHER SENTENCED IN BABY BEATING—Mrs. Lucille Medlin, of Grants Pass, Ore., sits beside her daughter, Mary Jane, 2, before the mother was sentenced to serve 20 years in the state penitentiary for assault with intent to kill the child. Mrs. Ingalls Holds Dora Is Primitive

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 15 (AP)—Mrs. Alfred Wesley Ingalls told a jury that Dora Jones, the Negro maid she and her husband are accused of enslaving, was a "primitive person" and that "nobody could ever suppress Dora."

"What she did, she did with all her might," Mrs. Ingalls testified yesterday. "When she loved, she loved with all her might. When she hated, she hated with all her might."

The New England matron and her 54-year-old husband, former Lynn and Boston lawyer and politician, are charged with enslaving the Negro woman with threats of jail and hell because of alleged intimacies with Mrs. Ingalls' first husband, Walter Harman of Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Ingalls, 62, had previously testified she had forgiven Dora, now 58, long ago for an affair with her first husband.

The witness, who has denied making any threats against Dora, attributed "all this trouble" to her two daughters, Mrs. Ruth Castendyk of Chicago and Mrs. Helen Ingalls Roberts of Berkeley, Cal., who have both testified against their mother.

Mrs. Ingalls said she quarreled with her elder daughter, Mrs. Castendyk, because the latter "became sympathetic with the Nazi movement" during trips to Germany in the late 1930's. Mrs. Castendyk has denied on the stand that she was a Nazi.

The New England matron testified that her estrangement with her younger daughter was partly due to the latter's "Communistic" views which she said were acquired at Radcliffe College, Cambridge, Mass.

"There were groups of Communist students there (when Helen attended Radcliffe) just as there are now."

Helen and her husband, Richard, Berkeley, Cal., chemist, have both denied any Communist sympathies from the witness stand.

A man living near the mill race said he heard three loud and piercing screams coming from that direction yesterday morning.

Finding of the body climaxes a hunt engaged in by police, Boy Scouts and Army MPs.

NAM Leader Says Raises Need Not Mean Inflation

WASHINGTON, July 15 (AP)—NAM Pres. Earl Bunting, said today the nation should be able to absorb this year's "second round" wage increases without going on an inflationary spree.

The head of the National Ass'n of Manufacturers told Congress that united effort for greater production, plus tax cuts to provide "venture capital" for the expansion of industry by 600,000 new jobs a year, is the key to continued growth and prosperity.

"Prices are high, as compared to pre-war, but the increase has been less than the rise of wages and during the last four months the price level has definitely flattened out," Bunting said in a statement prepared for the joint committee on the economic report.

"We yet have to see the full effects on prices of the current round of wage increases. But if we can keep production and productive efficiency moving forward, we should be able to hold this potential price rise from getting out of hand."

Committee members waited with some curiosity for another of the day's witnesses, George M. Humphrey, Pittsburgh steelman and coalman.

They looked for a possible reply to President Truman's plea yesterday that the coal and steel industries refrain from immediate price increases arising from the new coal wage agreement.

Along with eBnjamin F. Fairless, president of U. S. Steel Corp., Humphrey conducted the secret negotiations with John L. Lewis which led to unprecedented gains for 475,000 United Mine Workers and aroused White House fears of a new inflationary whirl.

Humphrey is chairman of Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co., world's largest commercial coal firm, and president of M. A. Hanna Corp., steel manufacturers. The coal concern already has announced it will increase prices.

Draft Vital As Recruit Plan Fails

By DAN MARKEL
Boston American Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, July 15—Dismal Army, Navy and Marine Corps recruiting records today cracked pacifist and left-wing arguments that America can maintain its armed strength through volunteers.

Reliance solely on voluntary recruiting had been advocated by opponents of universal military training at hearings before the House armed services committee.

But—

Army records today show that only 23,801 new recruits enlisted during the first six months of this year, and the next six months will be even worse.

First enlistments in the Navy totaled only 14,683.

The Marine Corps does not have a break-down showing how many youths entered the corps for the first time, but re-enlistments plus new enlistments totaled only 7095 for the full six months.

Only special inducements offered battle-worn veterans to re-enlist have prevented the Army and Navy from collapse, and most of these inducements now are gone. Short-term enlistments of a year or 18 months went out the window July 1.

Enlistments of 360,000 Army men—36 per cent of the present 990,000—will expire before July 1.

The Navy will have to rischarge more than half—232,455 of the 424,732 now in that branch of service.

The Marine Corps will lose 29,-618.

With only a handful of new men entering the services, and with re-enlistments declining, America's armed might will not only become smaller, but older.

The Army is the worst hit.

Each month since Selective Service ended the Army has lost two to three men for every one it could induce to enter or to re-enlist.

The Army sees dark days ahead. Every month at least 30,000 men will be discharged.

America will be left with only a skeleton force by 1948 if Congress continues to dilly-dally with UMT.

Red Prison Camps In Reich Revealed

By HOWARD RUSHMORE

NEW YORK, July 15—Russia has built 12 huge concentration camps in the Soviet zone of Germany, where former German officials opposed to both the Nazis and Communists are being secretly held, it was disclosed today.

Information on these prison camps came from Max Brauer, former foreign secretary of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, in a report released by the International Rescue and Relief Committee.

Brauer, lord mayor of Hamburg, who was placed on the Nazi purge list before the war, recently returned to Germany to aid reconstruction.

EGGS QUIT HUB

A shortage of native eggs in the Boston market was disclosed today when no wholesale quotation was posted at the local Fruit and Produce Exchange.

Farmers in Maine, New Hampshire and elsewhere in New England are finding it more profitable to cater to summer tourist business than to ship eggs to Boston, it was explained.

Exchange officials said the situation was likely to continue through the summer.

Hub Police Deny Gas Masks Faulty

The city council an dthe police department were at loggerheads today. Police were under instructions to test all police gas masks in a council order offered by Councilod Edward C. Madden of Brighton, who claimed nine policemen weer overcome Sunday in Brighton during a riot in which faulty masks were used.

Police Comr. Thomas F. Sullivan said a department investigation of the incident revealed:

"Only one gas mask was used. It was the most modern type of police gas mask. It was found to be in perfect condition. It is impossible for anyone to be seriously injured by the type of tear gas that is used by this department. The one officer using the mask did not report being affected. If additional masks had been needed, there are over 100 of them in the ballistics unit of the department in perfect condition and rady for immediate use."

Discovery Bares Secrets of Heart

By HOWARD V. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK, July 15 (AP)—The insides of babies' hearts, which are invisible even to X-rays, are mapped by a nylon and plastic tube exhibited to the fifth international pediatrics congress here today.

With the mapping, surgeons are able to repair tiny, defective hearts in a variety of ways. Examples are the operations of the past year that saved "blue babies."

The youngsters are blue because their hearts, or the arteries into and out of the life pumps, shunt either the blue, stale blood back into body circulation, instead of into lungs, or else send some of the fresh, red blood back into the lungs instead of through the body.

It has been difficult to know what operation to prepare for. Now the surgeon can plan accurately.

The mapping device is a catheter, a long, slender, shining, hollow tube, made of nylon, coated with plastic containing a substance opaque to X-rays. This tube is poked into a vein, and then the doctor can watch it as he pushes it along until it enters the heart chambers. He can select the chamber he wants.

The babies aren't bothered, for it is done while they sleep under the influence of avertin.

The work was demonstrated by Doctors Andre Cournard, Janet S. Baldwin, Aaron Himmelstein, Hurley L. Motley and David Dresdale of New York.

A new breath meter from wartime aviation, that tells how hard it is to breathe, promises more effective treatment for children with asthma, some forms of infantile paralysis, pneumonia, silicosis and any diseases in which breathing is difficult.

The meter is used after medicine is given for the baby's ailment. It shows almost instantly whether the child is breathing more easily, and so whether the best drug was used.

It was shown by Doctors Robert Kaye, Leslie Silverman and James L. Whittenberger of Boston.

Dr. Henry J. Gerstenberger of Cleveland reported that it is possible by giving small children a single, heavy shot of vitamin D hypodermically to protect them from rickets, which is softening of bones, for a year or more at a time.

He said this would be good for premature infants, and that with a little expense all children could be protected against this deforming disease.

State's Star Takes Stand In Overell Trial

SANTA ANA, Cal., July 15 (INS)—Attention at the Overell yacht murder trial swung today to a star state witness, Capt. Thomas R. McGaff, who is in charge of identification in the Orange County sheriff's office.

So important is the officer to the web of circumstantial evidence that prosecution is trying to spin around the boy and girl co-defendants, George R. Gollum, 21, and Heiress Beulah Louise Overell, 18, that he may be on the witness stand for the remainder of the week.

The State charges Gollum and the girl, motivated by "lust, greed and frustration," killed her parents aboard the power cruiser Mary E in Newport Bay last March 13 and then sank the yacht with a dynamite time bomb in an attempt to conceal the crime.

Yesterday McGaff gave testimony that paved the way for a disputed piece of cabin flooring to be admitted in evidence and he told of the gory condition of the forward cabin on March 19 after the sunken boat had been raised. He related to the jury of six men and six women:

"Small particles of flesh were adhering to ceilings and walls everywhere, torn pieces of clothing were about and fibers from clothing were jammed into crevices."

The piece of cabin flooring, a 14-inch length, was admitted in evidence after McGaff had identified it as a section he ordered cut out as a prosecution exhibit. Earlier the defense had blocked two state effeorts to get the exhibit accepted as evidence.

Second Norfolk Lifer Grilled as Break Plot Brain

Deputy Commr. of Correction Daniel J. McDevitt was at the Norfolk Prison Colony today questioning prisoners suspected of complicity in the thwarted escape plan of Abraham Goldenberg, 37-year-old murderer, with suspicion directed at another lifer who may have been the actual brains of this and a previous break plot.

Penal authorities theorized the man under questioning intended to go over the wall with Goldenberg, but lost his nerve after directing the long preparations. They were questioning him also in connection with the briefly successful escape a year ago of Michael McGuiness, 35-year-old Charlestown gunman, who made a rope ladder exit, only to be captured 16 hours later in a Walpole swamp, where he was trailed by a bloodhound.

A successful prison break usually calls for money help on the outside and McGuiness had no money, one penal officer pointed out. He was inclined to think the same plotter who was scheduled to make the break with Goldenberg had planned to escape also with McGuiness but backed out that time too, because of the high tension wires atop the walls.

Deputy Commr. McDevitt said Goldenberg probably will be returned to State Prison within a few days. He was sent there to begin serving life for the murder of his sweetheart, Lillian Franks of Malden, in 1931, tried to escape a year later, then was transferred to Norfolk in 1943.

Search is being continued today for two prisoners who escaped from the Berkshire prison and for eight of 10 boys who Saturday escaped from the Shirley Reformatory School. Two of the escaped boys were caught in Ayer.

Berkshire's fugitives were William Placido, 21, a Pittsfield car thief who was serving 18 months, and Henry O'Neill, 24, of North Adams, awaiting sentence after conviction of breaking and entering. They climbed a 20-foot brick wall in sight of two unarmed guards and disappeared before reinforcements arrived.

Boston Pharmacy School Closed

The doors of the Bay State Institute of Pharmacy, Inc., at 341 Massachusetts ave., Back Bay, were closed today in the aftermath of an order by Asst. Atty.-Gen. Nicholas DeLeo who charged the institution had not met standards established by the State board of registration in pharmacy.

DeLeo said that investigation showed that "veterans have paid $300 tuition for a six weeks' course in the belief that thousands of unregistered drug clerks passed their state board examinations after taking the courses."

DeLeo, who is assigned to the veterans division in the Attorney General's office, said he had received many complaints against so-called "diploma mills" operating in the state, offering correspondence, home study, or combined lectu re-correspondence courses in pharmacy.

Maine to Move Strike Tied Food

PORTLAND, Me., July 15—Gov. Horace Hildreth today entered the labor dispute which has tied up 90 per cent of the Maine trucking industry, by offering the use of state-owned trucks to transport food to communities stranded by the strike, now in its sixth day.

At the same time the 600 striking truck drivers, who claim they were locked out by firms in the Carrier Employers Group after three other firms had been struck, today began filing applications for state unemployment compensation.

Lindsay Weighs Legion Chief Bid

As the vanguard of delegates to the annual state convention of the American Legion began arriving in Boston today for Thursday's opening session in Symphony Hall, announcement was made that Sgt. Jake Lindsay of Lexington, Congressional Medal of Honor man now serving at U. S. Army recruiting headquarters in Boston, was a possible candidate for state commander.

Lindsay, a member of Lexington Post, was expected to announce his decision today. Should he decide to run, it will be the first time a Congressional Medal winner has sought the Legion leadership in Massachusetts.

The election will be Friday at 5 p. m. Also seeking the office are Harold M. Rogers and John Sullivan.

Thursday at 9:30 a. m., State Comdr. Lawrence Quigley will gavel the convention to order. Representatives of state and city will extend official greetings. Reports and nominations will take up most of the day.

The annual military ball will be Friday night at the Copley Plaza and the convention will be climaxed Saturday by the traditional championship drum and bugle corps contest on the Common and military parade in the afternoon.

Farley Ready To Back Truman

PORTLAND, Ore., July 15 (INS)—President Truman today had an offer of the support of James A. Farley, former Democratic national chairman, in the 1948 presidential campaign.

The former postmaster general and Democratic strategist was in Portland to attend the Elks national convention. Farley forecast that President Truman will be renominated unanimously and said: "If I can help in any way in the campaign, I'll do so."

JUST A GIRL

PASADENA, Cal., July 15 (AP)—Mrs. Soreno Velasquez, 102, was making what her surgeon termed "remarkable recovery" following a major abdominal operation.

Dr. N. Jacobs said the operation, while not unusual itself, was rare for a woman of her age. "She is doing very well," he said, "and barring complications she should recover."

Mrs. Velasquez gave her birth date as May 15, 1845, in Mexico.

YD Minus Guns, Men at Edwards

With less than 4000 officers and men on the grounds and minus needed guns and other equipment, the first post-war National Guard training period was in full swing today at Camp Edwards.

Gen. Edward I. Rose, State adjutant general and commander of the Yankee Division, likened the shortages to the training days of 1940 before the war, when men drilled with broomsticks and used stove pipes labeled "cannon." He pointed out that the complement of a full division is 16,000 men.

Unwillingness of men of training age to go through the rigors of training or to give up vacation time and in some instances refusal by employers to co-operate, were cited as cause of the manpower shortage—a shortage so marked in New Hampshire as to cause cancellation of the proposed August 3 to 17 Camp Edwards encampment of the N. H. National Guard.

Rhode Island will send out 350 "key men" to the August encampment and piece out the training with a state encampment the last week of the month.

China, U. S. Involved In Foo Case

International diplomacy, with the War Department and the Chinese government involved, today entered the trial of Earl M. Shong, son of restaurant proprietress Ruby Foo, charged with assault with intent to kill his stepfather, William Wong, 32.

Lt. Tony Lin of the Chinese Army, allegedly the only witness to the actual shooting of Wong in the Ruby Foo home, the Jamaicaway, became the central figure in the diplomatic diagram.

The dapper young Chinese officer, a student at the U. S. Army School, Ft. Monmouth, N. J., was held in $1000 as a material witness in West Roxbury Court by Judge Daniel W. Casey today.

Shortly after the shooting, the Chinese government ordered Lin back to China. He came into court today with a military intelligence officer. Then the defense counsel, Herbert F. Callahan, noted criminal lawyer, waived examination, which automatically headed the case toward superior court.

This left the police with no alternative but to ask the district attorney to make sure the young Chinese was available for a grand jury appearance even though his sailing orders are for Aug. 4, according to Sgt. William Shaw.

That, in turn, would require asking the co-operation of the War Department and a relaying of the request to the Chinese government through diplomatic channels.

Wong is partially paralyzed at the Bay State Hospital as the result of bullet wounds, while Shong is out on $10,000 bail.

Newburyport Turnpike Collision Injures 2

Two men were injured today when their automobile was in collision with a trailer-truck on the Newburyport turnpike at Boston st., Newbury.

Samuel C. Prescott, 35, an MIT professor, of Tappan st., Brookline, suffered lacerations of the face and head, while his companion, Archie McKillop, 35, of Algonquin rd., Chestnut Hill, suffered a crushed chest and cuts. Both were taken to Anna Jaques Hospital.

Skeleton Believed Buried Marine's Body

Parts of a skeleton, a vest and a moldy felt hat excavated by workmen digging a bed for a new water main in the rear of a Chelsea Naval Hospital building were marked today for reburial in Woodlawn Cemetery, Everett.

Navy officials believed the skeleton was overlooked in 1941 when the Navy took over the old Marine Hospital and coffins in the old burying ground were transplanted to Everett. The hat may have been part of a uniform.

Dewey Wins in Secret Poll Of Republican Governors

By JACK BELL

SALT LAKE CITY, July 15 (AP)—Gov. Dewey of New York won first place by a wide margin today in a secret-ballot poll of 17 Republican governors expressing their preference for the 1948 GOP presidential nominee.

Dewey received 10 first place votes and his nearest contender, Gov. Warren of California, two.

The remainder of the total of 17 first place votes cast by the Republican Governors was distributed one each to Sen. Taft, Ohio.; former Gov. Stassen, Minnesota; Gov. Green, Illinois; Sen. Saltonstall, Massachusetts, and Sen. Martin, Pennsylvania.

The indecision of Democrats about a vice presidential runner with President Truman was demonstrated by single first place votes for nine possible candidates, and two for former Sec. of State Byrnes.

The field included Sec. of State Marshall, Navy Sec. Forrestal, Commerce Sec. Harriman, Gov. Wallgren, Washington; Sen. Scott Lucas, Illinois, Sen. Byrd, Virginia; former Gov. Kerr of Oklahoma; former Gov. Arnall, Georgia, and Sen. O'Mahoney, Wyoming.

Ty Cobb Jailed On Drunk Charge

PLACERVILLE, Cal., July 15 (INS)—Former baseball star Tyrus (Ty) Cobb was out on bail today after being jailed briefly here on a charge of being drunk on a public highway.

Cobb was arrested Saturday by Highway Patrolman Franchi. He was riding in a car driven by Lucille La Pointe, who was cited for reckless driving and fined $25.

Cobb was ordered to appear July 22 before Justice of the Peace Lewis. Bail was set at $25. Franchi said Cobb "simply talked himself into jail," but would have been charged in any case.

Home Garden Forum

By FOSTER H. WEISS

Head of the Vegetable Gardening Department, Norfolk County Agricultural School

Q—What should we do with the broccoli after the heads are cut?

A—Apply a side dressing of complete fertilizer, dust thoroughly to control the green worm and wait for the side shoots to develop. If the plants are kept healthy, they will produce until fall.

Q—Is it a good practice to put large weeds under fruit trees for mulch?

A—Yes. Any coarse weeds or hay is valuable as a mulch around apple trees. Weeds with seeds attract mice later, but this can be taken care of by using poison mouse bait.

Q—Should the lawn be mowed in the hot weather?

A—If the grass continues to grow, it should be mowed when it reaches a height of 1½ to 2 inches. Usually the grass grows slower in hot weather, and does not need as much mowing.

Q—Our Swiss Chard leaves have maggots inside the leaf.

A—This is the beet leaf miner. Cut off the infested leaves and burn them now. Then fertilize the crop and a new set of leaves will develop that are free of this trouble.

Q—We have some large clumps of shasta daisies. When can they be divided?

A—They should be broken up now. Break large clumps into 3 or 4 parts, prepare soil well in a new spot, and add about ½ cup of complete fertilizer for each new clump. Water plants well after setting.

Bogus Bill in Tree Leads to Million

LOS ANGELES, July 15 (AP) A truck driver, who saw a counterfeit $10 bill fluttering in a tree, touched off an investigation that has already resulted in authorities collecting bogus bills with a face value totaling more than $1,000,000 and led police to a large cache of counterfeits at St. George, Utah.

T. R. Bracken, Los Angeles truck driver, sighted the bill in a tree on the Salt Lake City highway.

He then found a bundle of uncut sheets of the money, with a marked value of over $100,000, and turned it over to Las Vegas, Nev. officers. They said he located other bundles but left them at the spot.

Police learned that the bills, freshly printed, were scattered over a 20-mile area. They filled the back of a sedan with them and estimated the cache held more than $1,000,000 worth. The bills were considered of "passable quality."

FILE SUITS IN BABY DEATHS

CANTON, O., July 15 (AP)—Two officials of Massillon City Hospital and three other persons were defendants today in suits asking $200,000 in the mysterious deaths of two infants at the hospital June 6.

Brave Girl, 13, Quits Hospital

PITTSFIELD, July 15—Joan Marie Stumpek, 13, who decided to have her crippled leg amputated so she could get an artificial one and ride a bicycle, was back home today to play host to scores of her young friends and well-wishers.

The brave youngster made the decision herself and went off several weeks ago to have the operation performed at Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children in Springfield.

She is scheduled to remain here for a few weeks at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Stumpek, and then return to the hospital to be fitted to the new leg with which she hopes to run and play

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Copyright, 1947, King Features Synd., Inc.

BACK IN THE DAYS when the world was at peace and nations believed that peace was a possibility, there used to be a concept called International Law. They taught it, like much else, in the universities, and the learned John Bassett Moore wrote many a volume compendium on the subject.

International lawyers abounded in all nations, attended conferences and produced a vast amount of opinion on various subjects. The theory was that as men lived by law in their private lives, so nations would live by law without recourse to war. There was even a World Court of Law.

One of the questions that faced every international lawyer was the precise meaning of aggression. In short, it had to do with who slapped down whom first. Upon it hinged war guilt. Upon it, even more, hinged the question of how to maintain the peace.

Aggression is not easily defined unless the narrow concept is accepted that the nation that first moves against another is the aggressor. Actually, that nation may be moving in self-defense. Small and weak nations often acted to involve the larger and more powerful nations in their problems.

Hitler, for instance, upset all notions of aggression by using a fifth column, often composed of natives who served him rather than their own country. Sometimes they were suborned; often they were ideologically conditioned.

A Communist party, taking orders from the Kremlin, exists in every nation, even here in the United States. It is a direct arm of Soviet policy. Is that aggression or not? Is the existence of a fifth column an act of aggression?

IT IS INTERESTING that back in July, 1933, certain nations met at London to define aggression. They were Romania, Esthonia, Latvia, Poland, Turkey, Soviet Russia, Persia and Afghanistan. Of these countries, Esthonia and Latvia have disappeared; Romania and Poland are puppet states; Persia has become Iran and a battleground; Turkey is the ward of the United States; and we know nothing about Afghanistan. Yet, back in 1933, they were proud and sovereign and concerned with definitions.

They finally hit upon five precise definitions of aggresion, four of which followed the orthodox form of attack by armed forces, but the fifth was novel and very important. It read as follows:

"Provision of support to armed bands formed in its territory which have invaded the territory of another state, or refusal, notwithstanding the request of the invaded state, to take, in its own territory, all the measures in its power to deprive those bands of all assistance or protection."

This clause has, of course, been ignored altogether in recent years. Armed bands have generally been supported by contending countries, Yugoslavia, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary, Korea, China, Greece and now even Italy knows alien-armed, alien-controlled bands that have overrun their country, even to the extent of conquering them.

The Russians agreed to the definition but they have not abided by it. They will not abide by it. To them these armed bands are native partisans fighting for Communism. For Russia to refuse them support would be to renounce its basic concept of the inevitability of the world socialist revolution.

AT THE SAN FRANCISCO conference the charter of the United Nations should have defined every possible form of peacetime interference and intervention, but aggression is a ticklish subject, particularly among nations that have just undergone a war of aggression and believe themselves to be peace-loving.

There was another clause in the document from which I quote to reinforce the stern definition of aggression, namely:

"No political, military, economic or other considerations may serve as an excuse or justification for the aggression referred to in Article 2 (quoted above)."

That, too, is forgotten in this era of ideological and imperialistic preparation for war when anything seems to be proper, including the use of propaganda, wireless, armed bands, enforced hunger, the distribution of relief.

It is an anarchistic era growing out of a frightful war and in the shadow of the deepest fear man has ever known—the fear of total destruction. But anarchy is no substitute for international law as the Capone gang was no substitute for law enforcement.

Saltonstall Urges Vet Homes Action

WASHINGTON, July 15 (AP)—Sen. Saltonstall (R.) of Mass., urged the Senate to "make a genuine effort to provide more decent homes for our veterans" before adjourning.

He said he realizes that "time is short" and "that it will take more than legislation alone" but that something must be done for veterans and others in low income brackets.

Council Approves Sutcliffe Buses

Despite demands for a public hearing, the City Council has voted approval of a license giving the Sutcliffe Transportation Co., blanket permission to operate buses anywhere on downtown Boston streets, in competition with the Boston Elevated. A similar petition, but limiting the size of the vehicles, was recently vetoed by Mayor Curley.

Only three out of 14 councilors attending the meeting opposed issuance of the permit. They were Milton Cook of Roxbury, Joseph Russo of the West End and Daniel Sullivan of Roxbury.

On a rollcall vote, the council refused to refer the license petition back to the committee for a public hearing. The license was then approved on a voice vote.

JVA Urged to Spur Fat Salvage

All boys and girls in the Junior Victory Army are urged once again to continue their co-operation in making the fat salvage program a success as the supply of fats is still below normal.

Little trimmings of fat left on the meat platter at the table, scraps left on plates and even skimmings off soups and gravy are vitally important. Save every drop.

Your efforts will be rewarded because your neighborhood butcher will pay for all fats delivered to him in a proper container.

The fats and greases should be kept in clean metal containers which have no ragged edges. Narrow necked and glass containers should not be used.

To join the JVA, send your name, age and address to the Junior Victory Army, P. O. Box 228, Boston, Mass. If, in addition to enlistment, you want the JVA, enclose a 10-cent coin, well wrapped in your letter.

Read the next JVA story in Wednesday's Daily Record.

The couple will be married Saturday at the First Congregational Church, Cambridge, followed by a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Morton Jr., parents of the bride.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Miner of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., uncle and aunt of the bride, are giving the clambake at the home of Mrs. Stella M. Landis in Newbury. It will be attended by a number of out-of-town guests here for the wedding, including Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Miner, Dr. and Mrs. Edward W. Bixby, Mrs. Neil Chrisman, Charles Jr., and Stella Miner, all of Wilkes-Barre; Mr. and Mrs. John B. Clark, Augusta, Me.; and Miss Edith Loud, Falmouth Foreside.

This afternoon, Mrs. Ralph Wales of Cambridge is giving a tea for the bride. The bridesmaids' luncheon will be given Friday by Emily C. Evarts of Cambridge and the day of the wedding Mrs. Marcus Morton of Boston, the bride's grandmother, is giving a luncheon at Cambridge Boat Club.

Marian's fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest M. White of Falmouth Foreside, and a graduate of Dartmouth and M. I. T.

HONEYMOONING at Plymouth are Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Charles Burnham (Virginia Noyes) of Natick who were married at a candlelight ceremony in the Wellesley Hills Congregational Church July 5. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Woodburn A. Noyes, Wellesley, a graduate of Framingham Teachers' College and a former members of the Marine Corps.

Mrs. Malcolm C. Burnham

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm P. Burnham of Natick and a veteran of three and one-half years in the Navy.

Rev. Robert I. Blakesley officiated at the wedding. The bride's attendants were Priscilla Anderson, Wollaston, Dorothy Puckett, Wellesley and Mrs. Dorothy Black, Natick. They wore full skirted gowns of lavender, peach and green chiffon with matching picture hats and carried talisman roses. The bride was gowned in ivory satin with a sweetheart neckline and long train. Her fingertrip veil was caught to a coronet of pleated net and she carried bride's roses and sweet peas.

Alfred Edwards of Natick was best man and the ushers Alton Noyes, Walter Clark, Robert Langton and Robert Balcom.

JOSEPH STANLEY CUNNINGHAM of Milton, for some time one of the Hub's most socially prominent bachelors, will take as his bride a belle from the deep South. She is Miss Sylvia Levert, daughter of Mrs. Albert O. Levert of New Orleans.

The prospective groom graduated in 1929 from Harvard where he was on the varsity football team and also played hockey and baseball. He has been on a number of hunting and exploring expeditions and during the war attained the rank of Lieutenant Colonel as a pilot in the European area. His mother, Mrs. Stanley Cunningham, is a former Burnett and Joe works for the extract company of the same name. The wedding will be in New Orleans this month.

A romance that began at the Paris Peace Conference which the bride and groom covered for their respective papers resulted in the marriage recently of Vivian Lovell, daughter of Mrs. Walter Lovell of Boston, to Walter Boardman Kerr of New York. The wedding was at the Covenant First Presbyterian Church July 8. The couple will return to Paris this summer.

IMPOSITION

NEW YORK, July 15 (AP)—Frank Geary, 27, was held up by three bandits who entered a shoe store, rifled the cash register and left.

They returned five minutes later, and demanded shoes. The leader told him his size, the style he wanted, then sat down in a customer's chair.

Suddenly the clerk saw his chance, darted through the door and bellowed for help.

The alarm routed the trio—but not before the bandit in the customer's chair had slipped off the new shoes and into his old ones which were better for running.

Shaw's phone is not listed and the Cedar Rapids operator was not able to reach him.

Fuller Skirt Silhouette

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, Beauty and Fashion Editor

NEW YORK, July 15—Tulips and barrels and hour-glasses have been used fashion-wise to influence new and seasonal silhouette changes, but now comes Maurice Rentner, one of the country's foremost designers, to credit the shape of an inverted wine glass as the inspirational sources of an important silhouette in his new collection for fall and winter.

Rentner's formula for this new silhouette: A fuller skirt, tapered at the waist, widening towards the hemline, with a smoothness around the hips, making it easier to wear. Gradually, almost surreptitiously the skirt widens until it is in "full bloom," to make the waist, by contrast, seem exquisitely small.

To America's fashion press, gathered here to preview fall and winter collections under auspices of the Haupt couture of the New York Dress Institute, Rentner reiterated his faith in padded shoulders and their counter-balancing effect to figure contours, and his clothes proved his contention.

He said he believed that the elimination of the padded shoulder would constitute a sacrifice . . . Indeed it would be detrimental to the American woman's looks and figure. In this respect, he tossed his fashion lot in with Adrian, who recently described the "slipping" silhouette and padless-shoulders as dominant factors in making the American woman look "dowdy, dumpy and ugly."

Rentner, by his clothes, further proved that while he isn't opposed to fashion change he is definitely opposed to fashion radicalism. His clothes, as always, are the epitome of grace and femininity, their freedom of motion and rhythm in true keeping with restrained and punctuated elegance.

KEEPS PADDED SHOULDER

Rentner's collection is dedicated to the modern woman who refuses to accept the gaudy opulence of the past but welcomes a look of dignified restraint of constant youth and a slenderness of line belonging to this year and era.

Consequently, the padded shoulder held by Rentner to be one on the most important and flattering contributions to American style remains an essential feature of his collection.

Rentner firmly believes that a woman's exit should be equally as graceful as her entrance. Hence a number of things in his collection draw attention to the upper back, shoulder, and collar . . . some with fur, some bejeweled, some emphasizing color.

A unique source of inspiration for some of the Rentner originals is the suit of metal worn by Ingrid Bergman in her performance as "Joan of Lorrain." So impressed was this designer with her performance and her graceful movements even though in heavy armor, that he created a color which he calls "silver steel," executed in both satin and wool, suggesting the steel-like simplicity of the metal garb worn by the actress throughout most of her performance.

MUCH USE OF WOOLENS

Rentner's collection is stamped by several basic motifs: An illusion of slenderness by the treatment of the hipline, manipulation of the hipline to create a tiny waistline, new effects of flowing grace through drapes, the importance of exits as well as entrances, a flattering frame through the Dickens collar, and the retention of the padded shoulder.

Rentner makes much use of French woolens which give the effect of hand-knitted materials. In his evening collection, the revealing shoulder line, rich adornment and gracious sweep of skirt, calling to mind the alluring costumes of the Countess of Castlemaine and of the Marchioness of Montespan, modified by a sculptured purity of line and a sleek modernity, predominate.

The William Bass collection, which preceded the Rentner showing, was both exciting and well-bred and active testimony that a woman can have clothes of couture character at a comfortable cost.

It is obvious that his designer never for one moment forgets that he is dressing real flesh and blood women. Not manikins for a shop window or a fashion show runway. He always tempers the extreme to the tempo of our easy American life.

Predominating influence in the Bass collection is the tunic, which appears time after time, in several lengths, sometimes running on diagonal lines, sometimes swooping forward toward the back in a swallow-tail effect.

Shoulders come in for their share of recognition in this collection also. Bass rounds them slightly but keeps their figure-flattering width. He whittles his waistlines and subtle padding under simulated pockets or peplum.

One of the outstanding cocktail dresses in this line is the brown yarn-dyed taffeta with dusty pink roses massed at the deep oval decolletage. Another bright star is the theater-suit of black slipper satin with blouse of soft blue all over tucked chiffon.

For sheer subdued elegance, it will be hard to beat the black wool ensemble consisting of a slim-topped dress with circular skirt banded in row after row of black braid. Over it a short fitted jacket buttons high to the

Ultra-Smart Among New Fashions For Fall

COPPER and black iridescent taffeta . . . in combination with black silk crepe . . . is used by Maurice Rentner for this cocktail costume. Evading hip padding . . . this designer injects newness in the peplum with an illusion of hip extension . . . at the same time he retains slenderness and youthfulness in the silhouette. This is a lovely lady outfit.

EXIT in grace . . . that's what this two-piece suit affords the wearer. With the fashion pendulum swinging to the back . . . Maurice Rentner features back interest in the flowing black and white checked coat . . . highlighted by a turned-up collar, red-lined and dropping to a point in the back . . . to be worn over a black woolen dress.

GUNMETAL velveteen . . . an ultra-smart fall fashion fabric . . . is distinctively used by Anthony Blotta in this dinner costume in which a cuff-rounded hipline adds more fashion stress. Hand-woven Persian silk in light red and gray stripes makes the top . . . latticed with jet bead embroidery . . . for this kind of fashion artistry Blotta is justly noted.

Introduction Ease

You should be thoroughly familiar with the accepted forms for introductions . . . they are very few, they are simple, and they are easy to remember . . . so that, when needed, they will come to you automatically. Grace and ease in making introductions come only with practice.

—MRS. BEECKMAN.

A SKIN glower de luxe is a strawberry-colored cream which makes the skin tingle with obvious delight when it contacts it.

For complexion refreshment it takes the cake . . . that's because it contains the juice of fresh-fruit strawberries in addition to several other high-sounding chemical ingredients that actually make the skin tick with tingle immediately upon application.

You know it is working on the skin because it DOES tingle . . . and when the tingling stops it's time to tissue it off and douse the complexion with a mild freshener or oodles of water, as you prefer. This cream used two or three times a week on the complexion . . . and your face will have no cause for worry or concern.—R.M.

Share Canning Equipment

By MARTHA LEE, Household Editor

MOST OF US rebel at the idea that any good comes out of wars, but we have to admit that the situations which we meet under stress of circumstances often times teach us lessons which would otherwise not have been learned. Victory gardening and community canning were war experiences from which many homes benefited. There is much to gain by retaining those programs which contributed so generously to better health and good nutrition.

In addition to the canning centers, neighborhood groups learned to share equipment and this is a practice which might well be continued for social as well as economic reasons. People who canned their home grown vegetables were amazed to find how good they were and appreciated the economies involved. Now that new equipment is available, they wonder whether it is economy to invest in such things as pressure canners, home can sealers, etc.

ADVANTAGES OF SHARING

There are plenty of figures to show that this equipment pays for itself in the long run. However, there's merit in the idea of neighbors buying such equipment together. If one has a canner, let the other buy the home can sealer, or perhaps share in the purchase of some other part of the equipment and work together on their vegetable canning. It's much more fun to work in teams. The old-fashioned "husking bee" was work—and don't think it wasn't—but it was the social value of the husking bee which put it in the pages of folklore.

There is another real advantage in sharing the home canning program with a neighbor. Two people working together can accomplish the job more quickly, and canned vegetables are at their best when picked, prepared and processed in the shortest possible time.

THE PRESSURE CANNER

The pressure canner is certainly an essential, for the United States Dept. of Agriculture tells us that there is no other sure way of safely canning non-acid vegetables. But because canners on the market today differ in material, design and also size, there has been some concern for fear processing times that give adequate sterilization in one model might not give enough in another.

The standard processing times, recently established for home pressure canning by the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, may be relied on for any make or model of canner, household equipment specialists report after testing nine representative pressure canners. The tests showed that the rate of heating and colling in the different models did not vary enough to make different time tables necessary. Homemakers, therefore, may feel safe in using the standard processing times in any type of canner.

THE CANNING TEST

In the tests, quart jars of green beans and mashed pumpkin were processed in the nine canners. Two of the canners were of porcelain enamel on steel, one was of pressed aluminum, and the others of cast aluminum. The canners varied in weight from 11 to 20 pounds and in volume from 17 to 31 quarts. The smallest canner was not the lightest, and the largest was not the heaviest. Each canner had a capacity of at least one tier of seven quart jars. The largest could hold a second tier of quarts.

Although the canners differed in operating characteristics, their rate of heating and cooling did not differ enough to make different processing times necessary. In the canning done on an electric hot plate, the canners of porcelain enamel were slower to heat and faster to cool than those of aluminum, but processing results were not significantly different.

REVIVE POWER OF SPEAKER

By E. F. TOMPKINS

BY MAKING THE Speaker of the House of Representatives second only to the Vice-President in the line of Presidential succession, Congress has corrected an obvious defect in the Federal plan of government. It has also restored to the legislative branch of the government some of the lost dignity which under our constitutional system properly belongs to the elected law makers of the republic.

Under the statute of 1886, the line of succession—in the event of a President's death or disability—proceeded from the vice-presidency down through the cabinet members according to the seniority of their respective portfolios.

The effect was to give precedence to appointive officials over those chosen by the people themselves.

And, as Mr. Truman pointed out in 1945, this arrangement contained the possibility of a President's being able—in case of a vice-presidential vacancy—to designate his own successor in the White House

Not only is that political hazard now removed—more importantly, the Congress resumes the precedence which it should have.

Furthermore, the Speaker of the House of Representatives becomes once again in one respect—but in one respect only—the eminent figure in our governmental structure which the Speaker of the House should be.

The House of Representatives has now the opportunity, as for nearly four decades it has been its duty, to re-establish fully, in its own councils as well as in the pattern of government, the power, the authority and the prestige which its speaker should always possess and exercise.

AS LONG ago as July 1, 1941, Mr. William Randolph Hearst warned the nation of the perils to democracy existent in the low structure to which the speakership had been debased by political alterations

Writing in tribute to the late Thomas B. Reed, one of the greatest of a great line of speakers, Mr. Hearst said:

"Reed built the speakership of the House to such influence and importance that it became a rival in power to the Presidency.

"And the House itself attained a dignity and consequence that it has never since enjoyed, and that it has lost entirely in its present degenerate years.

"This achievement of Speaker Reed's was a patriotic one—and, in fact, a democratic one because it placed the greater power of government in the hands of the direct representatives of the people in Congress, and so brought that power more nearly in reach of the people themselves.

"This was in accord with the ideas of the Founding Fathers of The Republic, who intended that the people should rule and that the representatives of the people in Congress should have the greatest power and influence of the three departments of the government.

"That conception is a principle of essential democracy.

"Today the House is in the hands of speakers of whom the public hardly knows the names, and the Congress has sunk to so low a level that it has surrendered most of its powers and constitutional functions to the President, making the chief executive an autocrat and the government—to all intents and purposes—a dictatorship.

"This is not democracy."

MORE recently—in 1946—the Hearst newspapers recalled editorially what James Bryce had written in 1888 in his authoritative book "The American Commonwealth"—

"The dignity of the Speaker's office is high.

"In rank he stands NEXT AFTER THE PRESIDENT and ON A LEVEL WITH THE JUSTICES OF THE SUPREME COURT."

What needs to be done with respect to the speakership now was clearly indicated by enumerating some of the lost functions which the speaker of the House formerly performed:

"He appointed the committees of the House, usually with proper thought for their abilities and their obligations; he regulated its conferences, debates and other business, giving a consistent coherence to its proceedings; he was the spokesman FOR the House as well as the Speaker OF the House; and as such he spoke puissantly in the name of the people."

It is unthinkable that the Speaker of the House should now be raised to high dignity in the line of presidential succession, yet continue to be no more than a lackey in his official capacity.

So now we repeat these words from the 1946 editorial:

"If the Republicans are going to restore the prestige and power of the House of Representatives, they must first of all RESTORE THE AUTHORITY OF THE SPEAKER.

"They should GO BACK to the days of Tom Reed and make the House of Representatives again the most important factor in the government and the speaker again the most important man 'next after the President.' . . .

"The people honor and value power which is exercised in their behalf and for the protection of their institutions.

"They have only contempt for the weakness and servility which have characterized the House of Representatives of late years."

WHEN MEN PUT THEIR minds to it, they can do most anything a woman can do and better. That's what I stated here a couple of months ago. Many feminine subscribers disputed this claim. Others said I made the observation just to get a "rise" out of women readers. I deny this latter charge. Just to show you I was in possession of something, I wish to point out that the heads of the Brooklyn School, which offers courses in infant care to husbands, say that "fathers are the best mothers." That the fathers, after being instructed in infant care, are more efficient in bathing, dressing and handling babies than the mothers.

ASKING: Queries from clients. Q—Pearl White once appeared in a serial called "The Exploits Of Elaine." The heroes in this were played by Arnold Daly and Creighton Hale. The question I challenge you to answer is, who were the three heels or villians in this serial? A—Mister, you have me stopped. However, I think one of the villians was Paul Panzer. Q—What do the star gazers say about Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) husbands? A—You have me on a spot. I'm a Leo husband myself. The star gazers say that to women who don't have to live with them, Leos often appear to be excellent matrimonial material. But that the wives of Leos frequently find them difficult to live with. That they are inclined to be moody and are very sensitive. Also that Leos are hard to please. The only thing that makes life bearable with a Leo, say the astrologers, is that the old boy usually has a pretty good sense of humor.

HORSES AND WOMEN: The brassiere industry has a press agent. He refers to this bit of feminine equipment as a "bust pad." He says 5,000,000 pairs of "bust pads" were sold in the U. S. A., in 1946. He further states that this "form of deceit" has been going on for some time. He points out that "bust pads" were utilized by females as far back as 1865. At that time they were called "bosom pads." This information has been placed in file No. 3456D of our Horses & Women department for further reference.

IT IS THE LAW: In publicising a current book, a press agent for a publishing company sent gifts of a bottle of champagne to a number of columnists. He sent the champagne through the mail. He didn't know this was illegal. I doubt many of our subscribers share this young gentleman's ignorance. But anyway, please be informed that you can be fined as much as $1000 for sending alcoholic liquors by U. S. mail.

WITTY WOMAN: The wittiest woman I ever met on Broadway was "Texas" Guinan. Her wit was spontaneous and original. It was also generous. This latter trait is rare among women wits. The girls with wisecracking ability are usually a little on the "catty" side. Especially when their wit is directed at other women.

BRIEFLY: Note it stated greyhound racing with the electrical rabbit started in Oklahoma. That's not right. It started in Emeryville, Cal. And if you think it didn't, put up your stogie and we'll start arguing . . . The War Assets Administration recently offered for sale 45,000 pairs of mismated shoes. I have been wondering if a clever shoemaker couldn't take a pair of "mismated" shoes and make them mates.

QUARTETS: The greatest quartet singing center in the U. S. A. is Brooklyn. No party in the beautiful borough, across the bridge, is complete without some participation by the guests in close harmony. The Brooklyn Dodgers knothole quartet recently won the Greater New York singing championship and is a favorite to win the national title.

LOVE INTEREST: In the film version of "Up in Central Park," "Boss" Tweed is going to be depicted as falling in love. This is a radical change from the original version. There is too much juggling with historical facts in films. A man like Tweed shouldn't be made a sympathetic character. Love is wonderful. As I have repeatedly stated this department is in favor of it. However, love interest shouldn't be dragged in and smeared all over a picture just to satisfy a lot of love-starved females.

PLEASE NOTE: Roger Bresnahan, of McGraw's Giants, the greatest utility player in major league history, was born in Ireland. Roger played for the Giants 40 years ago. Since that time there has not been another native-born Irishman in the major leagues.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK, July 15—In forbidding the spending of union money for publications promoting or opposing candidates or issues in the public politics, Congress had in mind the fact that the gross income of the unions rose to more than one thousand million dollars a year during the war. Most of this was available as a slush fund to continue to elect members of the Roosevelt party or its offshoots and successors. I mention the offshoots and successors because, even as the Nazi party, the Fascist party and the old Lenin-Trotsky party in Russia, the New Deal party was bound to disintegrate and has done so, as we note in the recent appearance of the splinter groups led by Henry Wallace and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

Westbrook Pegler

Actually, this union slush fund was created by the New Deal party itself for its own purposes. That is, the New Deal passed the Wagner Act and set up the Labor Relations Board and then drove millions of workers into the mantraps, all subject to dues, fees, taxes and assessments. Very few of the boss unioneers gave a damn for Roosevelt or for the working people who actually constitute the living body of American labor. Most of them were interested only in staying in power and in preserving their easy, luxurious living and the system of nepotism which had actually created a royal class. These bosses have had hundreds of millions of dollars under their personal control. Usually there has been a form of "Democratic procedure" in the manipulation of the money, but the effect still has been that the high bosses could spend it as they would to keep in power the people who in turn kept them in power.

THE MINOR MEMBERS of the "executive" councils of the big international unions naturally had the same incentive to keep Roosevelt in the White House.

Old Alex Whitney, of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, casually evinced the politically brutal effrontery that developed among this class when he answered President Truman's threat to draft the railroad men into the army by a threat of his own to spend forty some millions to defeat Truman at the polls in 1948. This isn't his money and a poll of the membership, who are more purely and primitively American than most other groups of similar size, undoubtedly would repudiate the temperish old master on this point if such a poll could be taken.

Only the union bosses and the politicians of the Roosevelt following, such as Mayor O'Dwyer, of New York, were alarmed over the determination of Congress to bring these slush funds under control lest the power of money in elections should destroy the republic. Obviously, the rank and file had nothing to lose. O'Dwyer knew that if he went down the line for the bosses, who handle the money, he would put them in his debt when dough-day came again.

Although Dan Tobin is one of the most successful kings, he is, nevertheless, in some manifestations so dumb that it is a marvel that he has been able to go on and on, re-electing himself president for 40 years.

Victoria and Franz Josef sat their thrones longer but few other monarchs of the blood ever did. And, while their relatives were spared the necessity even to appear to work, Mr. Tobin's sons, after all, have done well, if we remember that their father is only an American king, and a union king.

FOUR YEARS AGO, Tobin, who is "editor" of his own personal publicity organ called the International Teamster, printed a two-page photograph in the middle of the magazine showing "High Officials Of Labor And Government" at a dinner in Washington, given by his international executive board. And, among the happy smiling faces were those of old Dan and his sons, Fred ($10,000 a year), director of the union's legislative bureau; and Joe, ($6,500 a year) of the statistical bureau and the wife of son Frank ($10,000 a year) who runs the statistical bureau but wasn't present. Another son, Ed, works with Matt Woll, the president of the engravers' union in a union insurance firm. So altogether, it is plain that if the old boy has ever done anything for "Labor," then "Labor" has done at least as much for him and his.

Well, there was blood on the moon after that publication because here was the royal family, all in civilian clothes, in war time, all on the union pay-roll and all sitting back after a sumptuous loading, presumably at the expense of the rank and file, in an expensive hotel in Washington.

The old boy, with a circulation of 900,000 at his disposal used that circulation to taunt his 900,000 minions, collectively known as The Common Man, with a display of the regality of the Tobins.

Hollywood

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, July 15 — Hot, but very hot, is the deal now being negotiated between Mary Pickford and Universal-International for them to buy "One Touch of Venus," the Broadway hit which starred Mary Martin a few years ago.

Hedy Lamarr

And here is the interesting angle if the deal goes through, and U-I acquires the property. The picture will be released as an independent venture. Hedy Lamarr and Dick Haymes in the starring roles. John Beck and Lester Cowan, the latter is Miss Pickford's business partner, will make it for William Goetz.

Hedy, of course, would play the Mary Martin role and Dick, who recently joined Universal-International, the John Boles role. The part calls for a fine singing voice and Dick has that.

IF MARGARET O'BRIEN weren't such a good little actress and the juvenile idol of millions, I'd say she could certainly ham it up in "Big City."

For the price of a theater ticket, you'll hear Missy O'Brien give with a ducky Yiddish dialect, a dash of an Italian accent and then go heavy on an Irish brogue. All of which is guaranteed to have the customers in the aisles gurgling "How cute!"

You see, in this one, Margaret plays a waif adopted, in turn, by an Irish cop, a Protestant minister and a rabbi. I hope you don't think I'm being facetious about the darling of MGM. I'm one of her most ardent admirers.

I HAVE ALWAYS believed that Jimmy Stewart would have the lead in "Harvey" when it is made on the screen, and the gossip now is that it's cinched. But William Goetz, who should know, says no one is definite for the part.

"Jimmy," said Bill, "would be good, but he's just one of many. Besides, we're not going to make the picture until next summer, which gives us plenty of time to make our choice."

I still believe that Jimmy has the role in his vest pocket. He makes no secret that he wants to play Elwood Dowd.

MILTON SPERLING is very frank in saying that he has indefinitely postponed "The Children," the story of the displaced children in Germany. He says his is a small independent company and it's too expensive to make a picture in Europe now. The whole junket, he feels, would be impractical.

I had also heard that Billy Wilder and Charlie Brackett were postponing their picture, "Operation Candy Bar," but this they deny. They, of course, will only take location shots in Germany and do not intend to import any actors.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: A woman who says she is the mother of one of our well known actresses, has paid me several visits and called many times. She says she has written a book and that the woman the actress is introducing as her mother has no parental claim.

The actress denies the story. In my business, I hear so many strange things. Some people have hallucinations, others tell the truth. However, I feel this woman will stop at nothing to get her case before the public.

UNLESS YOU HAVE a memory like an elephant, it won't mean anything to you that a beautiful woman named Leni Lynn is the toast of the current opera season at Covent Gardens in London.

But, maybe you will recall Leni as the little Italian school girl from Passaic, N. J., who was sent to Hollywood about 10 years ago by the school kids of her home town who pitched in their dimes, nickles and pennies to start her on a Hollywood career.

Her voice was beautiful, but somehow she never got started. When MGM didn't pick up her option, she was brokenhearted and decided to leave Hollywood. What do you bet, she won't get another bid now she's the belle of the London opera?

THIS IS LOVE! Gene Autry's horse Champion and his leading filly in "The Strawberry Roan" have pfffft and this might be funny except that Columbia is losing a lot of costly shooting time.

It's very important to the story that the two nags behave like spring is in bloom and like they are at each other's oats . . . I suppose you would put it, delicately.

Everything was peachy while they were on location, but now the company is back at the studio, Champ and the lady whose name is Sweetheart have developed a downright aversion to each other.

Well, this isn't the first romance Hollywood has broken up.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD collected at random: Ruth Warrick and Merrill Pye are still that way, and I'm one that thinks they'll marry one of these days.

June Haver

There's not only David Rose in June Haver's life, but another David, to whom she telephones long distance.

Marie Allison who looks an awful lot like Lila Leeds, who looks like Lana Turner, with Steve Crane at Sportsman's Lodge. He sure sticks to one type.

Kathryn Grayson and Johnny Johnston have already bought wedding rings. They'll have a double ring ceremony when they take the big step Aug. 2.

Mark Stevens at the Dells last night with Patti Behrs, the French actress—at least, the young lady was with a man who looked very much like him.

Tony Martin, supposedly sooooooo in love with Betty Avery Drown, was at the Chanteclair two nights in a row with Cyd Charisse.

This is what I call a nice birthday present. Barbara Stanwyck, whose birthday is the 16th, is receiving a purse filled with money from Bob Taylor to buy what she wants.

Don "Red" Barry reported forgetting it all with Carole Matthews, Paramount starlet, at Musso-Frank's. She was wearing a polo coat—not a white mink.

That ocelot that Mary Rogers has been leading around, got lost and scared the whole countryside.

Myrna Loy and Gene Markey have abandoned their plans to go to India because conditions are so turbulent over there. They'll go to New York instead.

Nice if you can do it. Carmen Miranda has bought an apartment house in Beverly Hills to house her relatives when they come here from South America next month. She must have a lot of them.

Dolores Moran's sister Marjorie, has separated from her husband, Charles Mann, former Warner publicity man.

THAT'S ALL TODAY. See you tomorrow.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, TUES., JULY 15, 1947

Boston After Dark

EXCLUSIVE: Chairman Robert E. Hannegan and Executive Sec. Gael Sullivan, of the Democratic National Committee will abdicate their party positions within the next 10 days or two weeks, this column has learned exclusively from an unimpeachable source . . . Hannegan will continue to be Postmaster General, and his friendship with his fellow Missourian, President Truman, is in no wise affected by his resignation as the top brass of the national committee.

THE POSTMASTER GENERAL probably will plead his need for a less strenuous life so that his convalescence from a major operation performed last winter in a Boston hospital may be complete . . . Gael Sullivan's resignation will be accompanied, probably, by affirmation of his friendship with Hannegan, and a statement that he does not wish to tackle the impending presidential campaign except as the sidekick of his pal Bob . . . Whichever forms the formal resignations assume, the important fact is that the popular and capable Hannegan-Sullivan direction of the Donkey party will cease to be by Aug. 17.

HANNEGAN AND SULLIVAN traveled from New York to Chicago for the Rocky Graziano-Tony Zale championship fight . . . They planned a two-to-three-day stop in the Windy City, and a return to New York for a week-end visit . . . They expect to be in Washington Monday, and release of the news that the Democratic party will need a couple of expert campaign managers for 1948 should be forthcoming in a matter of days.

SPECULATION about Hannegan's successor is going on right now among the handful of Capital insiders who know of the coming Hannegan-Sullivan resignations . . . Basil O'Connor, former law partner of the late FDR and active chairman of the annual March of Dimes campaign against infantile paralysis, is being mentioned as a possible successor to Hannegan . . . We are told, however, that O'Connor's chances of acceding to the job—even if he wishes it—are not too potent.

BUT THE CHOICE of a New Yorker to run the Truman campaign is favored by some intimates of the President . . . The Truman camp feels that Gov. Tom Dewey of New York will be the GOP nominee, and that a New York Democratic leader as party boss might serve to cut down the native son lead with which Dewey starts off in the battle to win New York's 65 seats in the convention.

HAD THE HANNEGAN decision to resign been made a couple of months ago, a New Yorker of proved ability in running a presidential campaign would have appealed to many Democrats as the ideal man to succeed Bob Hannegan . . . His name is James A. Farley . . . Unfortunately for the Democrats, Farley, the man who would have the best chance of any individual in welding the hate-ridden Democratic Party into a semblance of one piece has gone and written a book . . . Excerpts from that book have been printed in advance of publication in a national magazine.

THEY HAVE SHOWN that the wholesome and affable James Aloysius Farley has been consumed by a burning dislike of the treatment handed him by his onetime chief, the late Roosevelt II . . . The Farley essays have been written with a spectacular lack of subtlety, and Mr. Farley has not come off too well under the scrutiny of other writers who have made it a full time profession . . . Big Jim sounds petulant and peevish and somewhat sore-headed in his ghosted writings . . . He should have had a more delicate quill ghosting his story . . . The one he did employ has alienated what is left of the New Deal or Roosevelt following from border to border and coast to coast . . . So, at this writing, the "ideal man" to succeed Robert E. Hannegan as boss of the Democratic Party in 1948 is elbowed out of the picture because the urge to tell the truth about everything, including that "Voice from the Sewer" Chicago convention when Roosevelt was "drafted" for a third term, was not to be resisted.

Broadway

By Dorothy Kilgallen

NEW YORK, July 15—Broadway, the fabulous invalid, sat up and began to look more than convalescent. Lavish night club shows bowed in, others reached the casting stage, and a few optimistic gentlemen with cabbage on the hip made extravagant plans for new eating places of instituted luxury. New Yorkers who like to stay out late had plenty of places to go, and wherever they went the three big topics for chinning were baseball, landlords and flying discs . . . The big opening of the week was Nicky Blair's five-headliner show at the Carnival, a typical old-time Palace bill, zingy and varied, with pretty girls thrown in. Barry Fitzgerald, a ringsider, laughed fit to bust at Lou Holtz' tall tales and Diosa Costello's cyclonic bumps, and the general impression was that show business is here to stay at least for a little while longer. . . . Over at the Latin Quarter, another comic who's seen the best days of vaudeville on the Main Stem is holding the spotlight front and center—a skinny little fellow named Willie Howard who looks like a blintz-fed pixie. The new Harem is blueprinting a divertissement featuring the exotic Jack Cole dancers. And the island's other girlie-center, the Copacabana, just keeping rolling along.

WASHINGTON, July 15—Rep. Fred Hartley, of New Jersey, co-author of the Taft-Hartley Labor Bill, went to the small residential community of Washington, N. J., the other day to deliver a talk before the joint Kiwanis and Rotary clubs.

There was to be nothing political in his talk; nothing about the Labor Bill. He was to speak on sports—of which he knows a great deal, having been a professional athlete.

Washington, N. J., is not a manufacturing town. In fact it has only two small plants—one textiles, the other electrical equipment—employing in all less than 700 persons.

Nevertheless union leaders commanded all the employes of both plants, under threats of union fines, to take the day off and picket the hall at which Rep. Hartley was speaking!

This is the sort of thing that is happening every day to the chairman of the House Labor Committee, who, because of his chairmanship, gave his name to the Taft-Hartley bill. It has had its deadly effect. It has decided Mr. Hartley to quit Congress at the end of his term and devote himself to raising pigs.

"I have become a marked man," he says. "I can't go anywhere without running into the most unreasonable abuse and ridiculous anti-Hartley demonstrations.

"There is real tragedy in it, too. Take those poor workers in the town where I spoke. They had no say about being ordered out to picket me; they were forced to obey blindly. And it was estimated that the absurd demonstration cost them between $11,000 and $12,000 in wages."

He tries hard to smile it off, but he can't help feeling hounded. A few days ago he went to New York to make a speech. He was warned that attempts would be made to break up the meeting. But he has been threatened and picketed so much of late he sort of takes things in his stride.

He discovered, however, that others take them much more seriously. His train had barely come to a halt in New York's Pennsylvania Station when there was a rap on the door of his compartment. He opened it and in crowded six solemn-visaged men who identified themselves as an inspector of police, a captain, a lieutenant and three detectives.

Rep. Hartley asked to what he was indebted for the honor and the inspector said:

"We have been assigned to provide you with safe escort to your hotel."

"That is absolutely ridiculous," laughed Mr. Hartley. "I am only going through the tunnel to the New Yorker."

"Nevertheless," insisted the inspector, "We have had orders to see that you get there safely."

Mr. Hartley reports that he never felt so utterly asinine in his life parading through the station underground with six gendarmes—even though two of the detectives saved him a quarter by carrying his bags.

WHEN THE REPUBLICAN Mr. Hartley quits at the end of his term to become a pig man, Congress will have lost a member who has devoted all his adult life to legislation. As I said you the other day Mr. Hartley has been in Congress for 19 years having come here at the age of 26—the youngest man ever to be elected to that body.

For a time in his youth he toyed with the idea of making athletics his career. In fact, he was playing professional soccer for the Erie A. A. when he was elected to Congress. Before that he had also played semi-pro baseball. In 1926 he was New Jersey state handball champion.

At the age of 45 he is still red hot on sports. He heads the big Hartley A. A. in his home town of Kearny, N. J.

Although his name is now on everyone's lips, he has had surprisingly little personal publicity. He has been in the newsreels only twice in his life — his first week here as the youngest congressman, and the day the House overrode the President's Taft-Hartley veto.

But writing labor legislation has not been Mr. Hartley's sole contribution. He takes credit to himself for having played a big part in scuttling OPA. He attacked it with ridicule. He made his biggest play on the floor of the House one day after OPA had put out a 2500-word directive telling the bakers of the country how to bake fruit cake. The bakers came to Washington and asked that the directive be shortened and simplified, to which OPA responded to issuing the following amendment:

"All commodities listed in appendix A are those known to the trade as such excepting therefrom such thereof, if any, while subject to another regulation."

Rep. Hartley faced the assembled bakers crowded into the House gallery and said:

"Now go out and bake yourself a fruit cake!"

Bartholomew At Cambridge

That fine old Colonial practice, bundling, plus the presence of former screen child star, Freddie Bartholomew, failed to pack Brattle Hall last night for the opening of "Pursuit of Happiness," but the combination nevertheless appeared entirely satisfying to Cambridge Summer Theater "regulars" present.

Bundling, as you know, had a thoroughly legitimate reason for being. Thrifty parents of wooable daughters permitted the young girl and her marriage-minded admirer to take to bed when the fire died in the grate . . . always, of course, properly chaperoned.

The chaperon, as Freddie Bartholomew's Hession was amazed and amused to learn, was a wooden arm that was pulled down to divide the bed into the exclusively he and exclusively she sections.

The idea may have its amusing angles but last night was not the night for it, although in fairness it must be reported that there was nothing small about the audience appreciation.

Bartholomew's Hession is a rather uneven portrayal with an accent to match. Jean Gillespie, as Prudence Kirkland who won't be bundled is a promising young actress.

P.D.

UNREQUITED love is Joan Crawford's lot in "Possessed," Warners' film drama due on the Met screen Thursday.

EYE-MEDICINE is June Haver, that darling of the filmusicals, who is teamed with Mark Stevens in "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now," the cavalcade of Joe Howard song-hits, opening tomorrow on the Keith Memorial screen.

Jane Cowl Opens Wellesley Season

The new Wellesley Summer Theater will open its first season tonight in Alumnae Hall on the Wellesley College campus with Jane Cowl in St. John Ervine's "The First Mrs. Fraser."

Reginald Mason has the featured role of Mr. Fraser. Supporting cast is headed by Henry Barnard, Peggy Fenn, John Frederick, Bradford Hunt, Marianne Keating and Judy Hornady.

The performance will be preceded by opening ceremonies including a concert by Ruby Newman and his Hotel Statler orchestra and several guest speakers. The concert will begin at 7:45 p. m. The first-night curtain will rise at 9 with 8:30 the regular curtain time on other nights.

NEW PUBLICITY DIRECTOR

Alfred H. Tamarin, former publicity director for the Theater Guild, takes over as United Artists publicity manager Aug. 4, succeeding Tom Waller, who resigned last week to join the MPAA.

Sox Shakeup: Braves' Negro: Ruth's Dictum

By AUSTEN LAKE

DON'T EXPECT ANY CONFIRMATION from the secretive Red Sox on this. But baseball's cognoscenti insist that there will be a housewifely clean-up of several prominent Sox athletes who have helped muff the 1947 pennant. The forthcoming shakeup, they say, will rattle a lot of bones.

It requires no crystal ball to predict that Joe Cronin will retire permanently as bench boss to the air-conditioned calm of the upper office. His successor is sure to be selected for the starch in his spine, the bone in his jaw and the sulphur on his tongue. My Detroit agents whisper that Steve O'Neill, a rugged man when need be, would like to switch jobs. Steve likes Boston. Tom Yawkey likes Steve. It could be! But it's gold against goolash that none of the current Sox players will be hoisted to the pedestal.

Also the old wives' tale persists—from Detroit again—that Ted Williams' number is up and he will be given a good home among kindly people. Hal Newhouser's name is mentioned along with third baseman Kell. I don't support this hot-weather rumor, but it would make a good trade.

Further chit-chat has Johnny Pesky and Dom DiMaggio up for auction, either or both, since the two have bogged down from their 1946 form and persistent report is that there has been clubhouse trouble—a whisper that is vehemently denied. Still, all can hardly be well with the family relations of a team that claimed a pennant on paper last Spring and has come apart like a soggy shoe box. A losing ball club is seldom a happy one and it would be surprising if the boys didn't strike sparks here and there.

THE BRAVES MAY BRING UP a Negro ball player next year, following the trend since Brooklyn broke precedent by presenting Jackie Robinson. Cleveland signed Negro Larry Doby and has another colored boy, Sam Jethroe, in its farm system.

General Manager John Quinn, one of those baseball people who gives you a fair answer to a reasonable question, told me today, "Definitely the Braves will sign any Negro ballplayer we think can make the major league grade."

Q—Have your scouts been instructed to scout the Negro teams?

A—Our scouts understand that we are interested. They cover Negro teams as part of their assignment. If there is a good colored ballplayer we wouldn't hesitate to bring him up.

Q—Has any Negro been recommended to the Braves thus far?

A—Not yet! But let me make this clear. Negro players would have to be processed through the minor league farms, just as are white players. Baseball rarely finds a player in independent ball who is ready for the big time. So I don't expect any sudden invasion of colored boys—not for some years at least.

BABE RUTH'S LATEST DICTUM that night baseball shortens the playing span of major league athletes, has more than one echo from the athletes. Said one National League manager, who asks to remain incognito, "One trouble is the difference in the lighting systems at the various ball parks. There is no standard arrangement of the towers and reflectors. So we get dazzling angles of light in one park and a brilliant glare from other directions in others.

"I've had several players complain of eye strain. I'll wager that, within a few years, you'll be seeing a greater percentage of players wearing glasses than we have today—and there's more now than ever."

It's just another occupational hazard. Because night baseball is a fixture, responsible for more than a 20 per cent increase in the boxoffice. People with daytime jobs can't afford to absent themselves more than a few times a year to watch mid-afternoon baseball. But they are swarming to the nocturnal games, as witness the 640,000 who have seen the Braves home games. Under the daytime policy, the Braves rarely played to that volume in an entire season.

RECENTLY A PHILADELPHIA sport writer approached Commissioner Happy Chandler with a few questions. "Put it in writing," snapped Chandler, "and I'll write the answer. I'm sick of having my words twisted".

Perhaps at times Happy has had his remarks mangled. But in the writer's long acquaintance with the news profession, he has found 90 per cent of the reporters conscientious, fair and truthful. The rest rarely last long. What quaint sport pages we would have if a newsman was required to have a notary public present during interviews with sport executives.

SEVERAL SEASONS AGO Paul Wrigley hired a psychiatrist to travel with the Chicago Cubs and squat behind the screens taking down data on their batting habits and fielding behavior. He spent two summers with them, jotting down a mass of detail in a loose-leaf book.

I asked Jolly Cholly Grimm what ever became of the man's premises, which must have swelled to a small library. "Oh," said Cholly, "the club just filed 'em away somewhere and the guy disappeared—pouf! Like that." As far as Cholly knows nobody ever bothered to read the stuff.

Quotes by Joe Louis, anent possible retirement for lack of a suitable opponent. "No! Ah'm gonna fight one more. That's all! Win or lose or draw. Nobody's gonna sweat Joe to the last drop. The Lawd has been good to me an ah'm not gonna try His patience." Wise words, Joe!

Nanny Solves SS Problem

By MIKE GILLOOLY

It's difficult not to admire the courage of Johnnie Sain in grabbing off line drives but Mgr. Billy Southworth of the Braves would be more content if his Arkansas traveler had avoided a damaging blow that sent the big right-hander to the X-ray apparatus in the eve of the invasion of the world's champion St. Louis Cardinals. The first of three lamplit meetings with the Red Birds has Warren Spahn (12-3) stepping to the mound tonight (8:45) but with Sain a casualty, there may be a shift to Walter Lanfranconi (2-1) with an eye to the future—as well as a glance to the past. Spahn has a full game Saturday as well as one-third of an inning Sunday in relief in his immediate, busy background, Lanfranconi has been idle since July 4 when he turned in a 6-hit triumph in Philadelphia.

An extra day's rest would be helpful to Spahn; possibly have him readied for the Wednesday night encounter and, too, it would enable Barrett and Voiselle, Sunday's bombing victims, to finish off with the Cards and greet the Pirates, due at the Wigwam Friday p. m.

Sain's minimizing of the sting in his hand after he had intercepted a hot liner from the bat of Andy Pafko in the sixth inning proved costly. He insisted to Southworth that his pitching hand was not seriously hurt as he flexed his fingers in a conference on the mound. Ensuing events proved otherwise.

A control pitcher, Sain took the button off the top of Nicholson's cap; walked Scheffing to force in a run and then served a big jelly-donut to Don Johnson for a bases-loaded single. That was enough for Sain and enough for the Cubs to snap out of their 9-game slumber.

While pitching continues to offer the major headache for the Braves brain trust, the testy shortstop problem has been temporarily solved by Nanny Fernandez, the shuttle-train utility player who hopped into steady employment when Sibby Sisti was forced to the hospital bed at St. Elizabeth's. Sisti was to be released today, but he'll not be in uniform for another month or so.

Fernandez served time in the outfield and at third base before really finding himself. But now his slick fielding as well as his added punch at the plate has Fernandez rating as a regular.

He retired the side in the first inning on a pop and a pair of slick pick-ups of grounders that—except for stature—contained the poise of Marty Marion. In the seventh, he speared a hot bid by Lowrey that would surely have been scored a hit if it had leaked through to left field.

Fernandez will be in there as long as he continues to cover the territory as he has since his most recent promotion.

Ryan and Clyde McCullough of the Cubs had a get-together on Connie's eviction from the opener of the Sunday doubleheader . . . The Bruins receiver admitted that he "missed Ryan by three feet" . . . and he said he admitted as much to umpire Lou Jorda, although he continued to complain about an earlier play when Jorda had ruled Ryan safe at the plate . . . It was a fair exchange as far as Jorda was concerned.

Manager Charlie Grimm certainly celebrated—to the delight of the ladies—as the Cubs checked their due-south descent . . . As third base coach (with the Cubs in front, of course) he a variety of comic antics to ease the sting of the Braves defeat from the minds of their fans.

Danny Litwhiler's bruised heel still requires treatment daily . . .

It has cut down his speed although it was hadly noticeable as he toured left field to gather in blows from the bats of Peanuts Lowrey, Bob Chipman and then a cruise to the bull-pen for a foul by Phil Cavaretta.

Down-field blocking was demonstrated effectively by Cubs' Bill Nicholson with umpire Dusty Boggess the victim . . . Nicholson cut the chesty ump in half after scoring in the big sixth . . . It had nothing to do with the calling of balls and strikes; merely an accident.

Braves missed their best scoring opportunity in the third inning . . . Camelli opened with a single and stopped at third on Sain's double to left—a blow that might have been caught . . . but Camelli was cut down at the plate, by 10-feet, after Holmes had lined out and, after Litwhiler walked. Elliott's best was a tap back to the mound . . . any type of hit might have sent the Cubs plummeting to defeat again.

One-Hitter Stops Bums

By The Associated Press

Cincinnati's one-man pitching staff, Ewell Blackwell, will have to shove over to make room for a robust No. 2 boy in Everett (Red) Lively.

The 22-year-old unknown from Alabama elbowed into Mgr. Johnny Neun's inner circle last night with a one-hit job that fractured Brooklyn's seven-game win streak. Other one-hitters have been tossed this season but none have been finished in more spectacular fashion than Lively's 9-1 performance at Ebbets Field.

Lively retired the first five Dodgers and then walked Pee Wee Reese. Johnny Jorgensen's double off the right field score board ruined the no-hitter and the shutout, scoring Reese But that was all. Twenty-two Dodgers walked up to the plate and back to the bench, bewitched by the rookie's fast ball and dancing curve.

Once in the dim past, Lively's father, Jack, pitched a no-hit, no-run game in the Southern League, facing only 28 men. His son came so close last night in the big time that he must have been thinking of his dad's effort 38 years ago.

It was the second straight fine pitching turn by Lively, who defeated Boston's Bill Voiselle, 2-1, in a July 10 night game, allowing only three hits. Up to that time he hadn't been able to win a game.

Neun thought so much of him in the spring that he started him against St. Louis in the third game of the season, April 17, but he failed and was batted out in the first inning. One more starting chance two days later against Pittsburgh resulted in the same first-inning trouble and Lively was condemned to the bullpen.

The Dodgers maintained their three-game National League lead for the Braves fell before Chicago in an afternoon game, 5-3.

Tommy Hughes, of the Phillies, who appeared to be on the way to a new record for games lost a few weeks ago, turned in his third straight well-pitched victory, downing St. Louis, 5-2. The loss, suffered by George Munger who was working on a seven-game win streak, left the World Champs six full games back of the Dodgers.

The Giants fell back on their favorite weapon, the home run, to drub Pittsburgh, 5-1, with Bill Rigney, Sid Gordon and Johnny Mize hammering homers. It was No. 13 for Rigney, seven for Gordon and 26 for Mize, boosting the Giants' total to 116 in 76 games.

Rain cut the American League schedule in half, washing out the Yankees' attempt to stretch their win streak to 15 in Chicago. The Philadelphia at Detroit tilt also was rained out after the A's had scored two on Hal Newhouser in the first inning.

St. Louis cut loose with a 20-hit attack to submerge Washington, 13-3, before a gathering of only 478 fans in Sportsman's Park, the smallest turnout of the big league season.

Cronin Tempted to Bat Ferriss No. 4

By HERB FINNEGAN

CHICAGO, July 15—Did ever a major league pitcher bat No. 4 in a championship game? Joe Cronin, around since 1925, couldn't identify one today as the Red Sox loafed around for their night game with the White Sox. "Maybe Ruth did when he was pitching for the Red Sox," said Joe. That went back to '18, and nobody could remember.

Cronin himself brought up the topic because, as he admitted: "I was tempted to bat Ferriss No. 4 in last night's game at Cleveland. Nobody else has been hitting behind Williams, so I figured Ferriss might. He's been quite dependable in the clutches this year."

Cronin didn't make the radical change. Instead he dropped Williams from No. 3 to No. 4, put Dente in leadoff and Moses No. 3. It was the first time since June 22 that Williams has hit No. 4. Even that change failed to work in the early innings because the Sox left two men aboard in first, second and third.

The spot behind Williams has been a sore one. York didn't fill the bill as he did a year ago and was traded. Jones and DiMaggio aren't hitting. Mele, rookie of the year up to the time he was placed behind Williams, immediately faded to a .176 pace and out of the lineup. Nor was Doerr hitting until last night. So the "stop the Sox" strategy of the opposition had been simple this season. "Pass Williams in the clutch. Nobody else will knock in the runs."

But Cronin was content today that he didn't make the historic change. He had two persons to thank. One was Lou Boudreau, the other Doerr, who is batting in the .250's this year compared to his .306 of 1946.

Bobby is leading the Sox in RBI with 51 but he's left plenty of men on base. He left four on himself in the first three innings last night but made up for a lot of his mistakes when he homered off Don Black in the ninth, the first run made off that famous reclamation project in two games—his no hitter and this one he lost 1-0, a heartbreaker.

It seemed Black had the game in his pocket half an inning before. With one out, Mitchell bounced a single off Ferriss' right shin. Robinson shot him to third with a long single to right center. Up came Boudreau, league leading hitter, and most dangerous in the pinch.

The Cleveland manager chose to outsmart himself, however. He tried to put on the squeeze which backfired. He bunted poorly, and Mitchell missed the sign. Ferriss picked up the bunt, threw to Doerr at first for the second out, and Doerr relayed to Tebbetts at the plate to get the on-rushing Mitchell.

BULLETIN

Red Sox officials had no comment today to make regarding the report that Lou Boudreau might be with the Sox by 1948. They did point out that the acquisition of Boudreau, who is worth at least $250,000 to Cleveland, would necessitate one of the biggest deals in baseball history to complete, either as a purchase or trade proposition.

Hughson Faces Chisox After Only 4 Days Rest

CHICAGO, July 15—Tex Hughson will pitch tonight with only four days' rest. He was supposed to be a "once-a-week" starter after his last examination in Baltimore. Win Green still treats his arm every day and night, so it is to be hoped he's not overdoing . . . Pitcher "Footsie" Marcum batted No. 4 for the Toledo Mudhens in 1940, recalls Bob Evans, son of Detroit's Billy. "I well recall it because Bob Neighbors, third baseman who once was with the Browns batted No. 9 and used to say "Great morale-builder, eh?" . . . Williams singled twice but fanned in the eighth with Pesky on first, and that looked like the Sox' last chance . . . Night game tonight, single here tomorrow and double-header Thursday.

Cleveland was moaning because they didn't know what they were going to use for pitchers in the five-game series with the Yanks . . . This was the halfway mark for the Sox in games—77. They've won 41, lost 36. At this juncture last year their record was 52 won, 25 lost . . . Don Black's effort to emulate Johnny Vander Meer in pitching successive no-hitters was dissipated on the second pitch of the night. Sam Dente hit it between Keltner and Boudreau for a clean single.

Metkovich does a 100-yard dash from right center to left center when Doerr follows Williams to the plate . . . With the count 2 balls, no strikes on Pesky in the third, Black shaved Pesky's whiskers. A moment later, Williams lashed a single off Black's torso and Pesky led the cheers . . . When DiMaggio bunted safely in the second, it was his first hit in 16 AB's . . . In the same inning, he threw out Hegan as the latter tried to stretch a single. In the fourth, he raced back to the fence to rob Edwards of a double. That's the '46 DiMaggio.

Somerville Youth to Fight For Hearst Ball Team Spots

By JACK CONWAY, JR.

Close to a dozen of the top instructors of the Somerville Recreation Commission will be on hand next Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at Dilboy Field, to aid Claude Davidson and Bill Barrett with the Boston Record-American-Sunday Advertiser Sandlot baseball tournament.

The Dilboy tournament is the last one of nine Hearst-New England tryouts.

The board will select three boys from Dilboy Field. These boys will participate in the Hearst-New England final on July 29 at Fenway Park.

Francis Mahoney, supervisor of recreation for Somerville, has placed his assistant, Charlie Kelley, in charge of the Somerville end of the Hearst tournament.

"We have some very able men in our Somerville department," stated Kelley. "I have contacted close to a dozen of them to aid the kids in the tryouts.

"Some who will be on hand are: Hugh McCucker, Tom Polombo, Clem Mackey, Gene Nash, Charlie Mahoney, Frank Murphy, Sol Camitta and Jim Mooney. All of them have had much experience with young ballplayers."

Jimmie Cassell, coach of the St. Clement's team in Somerville, sends word in that he will do all he can to help.

The 26 New England baseball players selected from the nine localities will play in the Hearst N. E. final at Fenway Park. The two best boys in this tournament at Fenway will take a seven day expense free trip to New York city for the National Hearst Sandlot final on August 13.

PAWTUCKET NEXT

The next in the series of Hearst New England sandlot baseball tryouts will be held tomorrow morning (10 o'clock) at McCoy Stadium, Pawtucket, R. I.

Mgr. Pete Fox and Pres. Varnum Barber of the Pawtucket Slaters of the Class B New England League will conduct tryouts.

Mae Murray Holds Vt. Golf Lead

RUTLAND, Vt., July 15 (AP)—Miss Mae Murray, defending champion, held a 14-stroke lead today as the quarter-finals of the Vermont amateur golf tournament got underway at the country club.

Miss Murray, daughter of the club's golf professional, posted a three-under-par 71 in yesterday's qualifying round.

Mrs. Stanley Neptune of Barre, was second with an 85, and Mrs. H. Brandon Jones, state champion in 1939 and 1940, finished third with 89.

The Rutland Country Club team won the Buxton Cup for the seventh time. It is awarded annually to the club team which posts the lowest aggregate score for three players.

Housing Shortake Solved by Juniors

WORCESTER, July 15 (AP)—Youngsters, competing in the 29th annual state junior golf championship, have beaten the housing shortage.

The housing shortage resulted when the tournament was brought to Worcester Country Club the first time it has not been held in the Boston area.

Bob Magee of the Charles River Club set up a tent beside the eighth green. John Fuller and John Finlayson, both of Woburn, brought sleeping bags.

Seventeen-year-old Frank Lally, Jr., son of the former Brookline pro, turned in the best medal score, a 75. He defeated Pat Kelly, of Framingham, 5 and 3.

Zale Set For Rocky Title Test

CHICAGO, July 15 (AP)—Tony Zale, who at the age of 33 is boxing's oldest active champion, is determined to give youth another lesson in fighting.

The world's middleweight titleholder flatly said today he would defeat Docky Graziano, Brooklyn challenger, within six rounds when they collide in Chicago Stadium tomorrow night in their 15-round championship showdown.

Zale, who got up off the floor to knock out Graziano, eight years his junior, in their first battle, a thrilling six-rounder fought in New York's Yankee Stadium last September, recalled a promise made his mother before her death that his next title fight would be "One just like that."

"This is one fight I will win for her," the Gary, Ind., so-called man of steel said.

Zale, in superb condition and oozing confidence, added that he was stronger now than when he knocked out Graziano before and that his right hand, broken in that engagement, has healed perfectly.

Making weight will be no problem for Zale since he is within ounces of his prescribed 160 pounds now.

Graziano, satisfied that his condition is excellent, rested today. He weighed 154½ after his final drill.

The indoor battle probably will be fought in sweltering temperature despite efforts to cool the huge arena by opening the refrigerating system used to manufacture ice for hockey.

Cobb Ready For Record Attempt

SALT LAKE CITY, July 15 (AP)—John Cobb of London has set Aug. 15 as the date to attempt to boost his present world's land speed record of 369.7 miles per hour.

Cobb will drive his Railton Mobil Special, the same car—but with a different name—with which he set the present record in 1939.

The run again will be made on the Bonneville Salt Flats course, 120 miles west of Salt Lake City.

Cobb, during a visit to Salt Lake City last winter, said a speed of 400 miles per hour was not impossible for his 2600-horsepower, two-engine car.

His projected run will follow by less than two weeks an attempt by Ab Jenkins of Salt Lake City to boost world's land speed distance records. Jenkins now holds most of the records for runs of 50 miles and more.

Jenkins' runs also will be made on the Bonneville course. He will use a circular track, however, instead of the 16-mile straightaway down which Cobb will send his streamlined racer.

A. C. Pillsbury of Los Angeles, regional representative for the American Automobile Association, and T. E. Allen, member of the AAA contest board, inspected the salt flats yesterday. They conferred with Utah officials today and Pillsbury then wired Cobb that arrangements for the run could be completed in time for the Aug. 15 try.

Cobb's car was shipped from London July 8 and the driver, who is a fur broker, plans to sail on the Queen Elizabeth July 25.

H. Walker Ups Lead

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Harry Walker of the Phillies has lengthened out a commanding 22-point lead in the National League batting race but Cleveland's shortstop-manager Lou Boudreau is getting stiff contention from New York's Joe DiMaggio for the American League crown.

While Walker's first place .341 outdistances runnerup Ralph Kiner of Pittsburgh who is hitting .319, Boudreau tops the American with a .345 mark to .338 for DiMaggio, according to figures including Sunday's games.

It's a wide open scramble behind Walker in the National.

Although the American is a two-man battle between Boudreau and DiMaggio at the time, several others remain in the running. George Kell of Detroit holds third at .328 and Chicago's Luke Appling has a respectable .324 for fourth.

George McQuinn of New York, an early season leader, continues among the leaders with a fifth-place .318. Others in the first 10 are Bob Dillinger of St. Louis, .310, Barney McCosky of Philadelphia, .309, Ted Williams of Boston, .303, Bill Johnson of New York, .301 and Johnny Pesky of Boston, .298.

Downs Spill Puts Jockey Petrin Out Two Months

Apprentice Jockey Raymond Petrin, who was spilled during the running of yesterday's seventh race at Suffolk Downs, suffered a fractured collar bone and will be sidelined for at least two months, according to hospital reports.

Petrin is the Lonsdale, R. I. riding sensation, who topped the list of leading apprentices at the recent Narragansett Park meeting. The lad was listed to ride seven mounts today.

Petrin's mount Foxie Nettie was caught in close quarters on the inner rail leaving the backstretch and fell heavily. Foxie Nettie was destroyed by the track veterinarian.

Bad Ankle Sidelines Huggins

By DAVE WILSON

Apprentice Johnny Huggins, who is under contract to Doc Bickford, will be sidelined for at least two months as a result of a fractured ankle, suffered during training hours last aSturday . . . The Mill River Stable's Miss Grillo has been assigned the top impost of 126 pounds for Saturday's running of the $15,000 Hannah Dustin Handicap. Whether or not the invader from the Argentine will be a starter will not be known until Racing Sec. John P. Turner has contacted Senor Horatia Luro.

Williams Helis' Elpis, heroine of the $15,000 Molly Pitcher Handicap the past Saturday at Monmouth Park, is scheduled to arrive at Suffolk Downs tomorrow where on Saturday, the 5-year-old daughter of Blue Larkspur will attempt to annex her third straight Hannah Dustin. Elpis has been assigned 119 pounds for the one mile and a sixteenth event . . . Leo (Turk) Beyda, the well-known handicapper, is planning to return to the owners' ranks in the near future. He has booked reservations for the forthcoming Keeneland sales.

Abelardo DeLara, nursing a broken collar bone suffered as a result of a recent fall from B-Twenty-Nine (a horse) at Belmont Park, was a visitor yesterday afternoon at Suffolk Downs . . . Reaping Hook, a first-time starter from the Orlan Lodge Stable, came up a warm paddock tip in yesterday's second race at the Downs, and, finally paraded postwards the betting favorite. The 4-year-old son of Sickle could do no better than finish a fast-fading fourth.

Leo Sierra, the top trainer at Mexico City in 1946, is a daily visitor. He has a large string of thoroughbreds at Rockingham Park awaiting the opening of the summer meeting at that point . . . Trainer Frank Dunn is so satisfied with the light impost of 104 pounds assigned Lady Phara for the Hannah Dustin that he may start the 3-year-old.

The Good News Stable has shipped Roberto, Ramojac and Boyish Love from Keeneland, Ky. This trio is consigned to Trainer Bob Cramer at Suffolk Downs . . . Cecil Locklear is currently training the Reynolds thoroughbreds in lieu of the absence of brother Clyde, who is vacationing in Canada . . . Jockey Sammy Walters, who rode Rough Cloud in yesterday's third race, is under contract to J. Y. (Yancey) Christmas who leased the lad's services from J. P. (Doc) Jones.
